Effective Presentations – You're On!

Every presentation is a valuable opportunity to connect, inform, persuade, educate, or motivate others. However, many of us fail to treat these opportunities with the respect and professionalism they deserve. We're either too rushed or not equipped well enough, so we leave our audience confused or disengaged. In Eagle's Flight's experiential learning program, You're On![™], your employees will learn how to prepare their message, utilize relevant content, and master the delivery of it in a feedback-rich environment. From preparation to presentation, this program takes a hands-on, experiential approach to developing expert and confident public speakers who can have an immediate impact on their audience, whether that be 10 people or 10,000. To get the most out of the experience, this program works best with small groups, creating a supportive and focused learning environment.

THE OUTCOME

Individuals will return to work with the ability, tools, and confidence to:

- Analyze and identify their audience and make the message specific and applicable to them
- Present clear, concise, and impactful content
- Speak publicly and communicate effectively to diverse audiences
- Use appropriate imagery and effects to clarify the message
- Read verbal and body-language cues in order to alter presentation style for maximum effect
- Quickly bridge the distance between intent and comprehension

THIS ISN'T YOUR ORDINARY LEARNING EXPERIENCE

An Eagle's Flight experiential learning program is unlike anything you or your participants have seen before – it's not another lecture, case study, or role-play. It's an immersive, learn-by-doing experience, where the learning is embedded in an engaging activity. Why do we do this? It allows participants to simply be themselves in the experience, and act as they normally would at work. This is where true behavior change begins.

By personally experiencing the results that come from applying their existing behaviors, participants see the link between their performance in the experience and the changes they need to make to maximize performance at work. A powerful debrief reinforces the lessons learned in the experience and shows how to apply those lessons back on the job. New competencies are developed, learnings are retained, and individuals are more likely and better able to enthusiastically apply their new knowledge to improve their day-to-day performance.

"The use of your experiences to build understanding and conviction is an Eagle's Flight trademark; and one which, in my opinion, is a true differentiator that sets you apart from all others in your field."

Marc Caira, Vice Chair, Restaurant Brands International
