

Executing Winning Strategies – Expedition Outback

Your marketplace is fraught with perils like competition, customer demands, and misinformation. However, it is also full of opportunities, if your employees can recognize and act upon them. It is possible to miss out if we do not have the relevant information, cannot understand it, or if we fail to apply it appropriately. For your organization to successfully capitalize on opportunities, your employees need to be equipped with the skills to uncover the information they need to evaluate options, create and execute a strategy, foresee challenges, and create contingency plans to outwit and outlast the competition.

During the highly energetic and collaborative experiential learning program, Expedition Outback™, participants will learn how to identify and capitalize upon opportunities, fully leverage available information, and develop a results-driven mindset. The debrief highlights how the same lessons in the experience can be applied to the realities of your workplace, thus equipping your employees with the skills to identify priorities, evaluate the information at hand and seek clarity, and create the best possible plan to make it reality. All of this leads to higher productivity, less stress, and better business results.

THE OUTCOME

Individuals will return to work with the ability, tools, and confidence to:

- Recognize all opportunities and value their full potential
- Identify quality information that can be leveraged to maximize results
- Create a goal-directed consensus through clear and effective communication
- Overcome obstacles through problem-solving, implement logical contingency plans, and execute exceptionally in a changing landscape
- Set checkpoints for the team as a time to adjust and rethink processes and tactics if needed

THIS ISN'T YOUR ORDINARY LEARNING EXPERIENCE

An Eagle's Flight experiential learning program is unlike anything you or your participants have seen before – it's not another lecture, case study, or role-play. It's an immersive, learn-by-doing experience, where the learning is embedded in an engaging theme intentionally and apparently unrelated to participants' work environments. Why do we do this? It allows participants to simply be themselves in the experience, and act as they normally would at work. This is where true behavior change begins.

By personally experiencing the results that come from applying their existing behaviors, participants see the link between their performance in the experience and the changes they need to make to maximize performance at work. A powerful debrief reinforces the lessons learned in the experience and shows how to apply those lessons back on the job. New competencies are developed, learnings are retained, and individuals are more likely and better able to enthusiastically apply their new knowledge to improve their day-to-day performance.

"The use of your experiences to build understanding and conviction is an Eagle's Flight trademark; and one which, in my opinion, is a true differentiator that sets you apart from all others in your field."
