

Planning and Managing Team Resources – Jungle Fire

What would be the outcome if you could redirect the time and energy employees spend on poorly chosen objectives and channel it into the right ones? When employees feel pressure to produce results, it can be easy for them to skip the planning stage and jump right into action. However, if they do the analysis and make good decisions from the outset, the path to improved results become much more clear. And what about the teams they work in? What would be the results if each team member's strengths and talents were leveraged?

In Eagle's Flight's engaging experiential learning program, Jungle Fire™, participants will get invaluable hands-on experience and practice identifying available resources from information, to people and tools – and then learn how to apply them to the appropriate projects and tasks at the right time. Your employees will return to work as a more cohesive team that is able to effectively make a plan, manage resources, use all relevant information to make informed decisions, and communicate and perform together to deliver tangible business results.

THE OUTCOME

Individuals will return to work with the ability, tools, and confidence to:

- Understand the importance of setting time aside for effective planning
- Make informed decisions about which objective will produce the best quality results
- Identify and utilize all relevant information and resources
- Recognize the diverse set of strengths and talents within the team, and assign tasks accordingly to maximize productivity
- Take appropriate risks from a position of strength, not desperation

THIS ISN'T YOUR ORDINARY LEARNING EXPERIENCE

An Eagle's Flight experiential learning program is unlike anything you or your participants have seen before – it's not another lecture, case study, or role-play. It's an immersive, learn-by-doing experience, where the learning is embedded in an engaging theme intentionally and apparently unrelated to participants' work environments. Why do we do this? It allows participants to simply be themselves in the experience, and act as they normally would at work. This is where true behavior change begins.

By personally experiencing the results that come from applying their existing behaviors, participants see the link between their performance in the experience and the changes they need to make to maximize performance at work. A powerful debrief reinforces the lessons learned in the experience and shows how to apply those lessons back on the job. New competencies are developed, learnings are retained, and individuals are more likely and better able to enthusiastically apply their new knowledge to improve their day-to-day performance.

"The use of your experiences to build understanding and conviction is an Eagle's Flight trademark; and one which, in my opinion, is a true differentiator that sets you apart from all others in your field."
